A new Duryea's Lobster Deck is slated to take over the former Orient by the Sea space on the North Fork—a sister restaurant to the Montauk mainstay. The indoor/outdoor restaurant's summer-centric menu will include dishes such as lobster rolls, fresh crudité and a raw bar highlighting seafood from nearby waters. "Duryea's is all about transporting people to a different part of the world, for a few hours, offering a much-needed escape from the busy lives most of us have," says managing partner Steven Jauffrineau. duryealobsters.com

Greenport is now barbeque-focused, with meat-centric offerings like 24-hour NY Prime Beef Brisket and other comfort foods. "The idea was to join approachable foods that people can easily identify with a wallet-friendly price point," says chef Matt Boudreau. greenhillny.com

BODY & SOUL

Reinvigorate your mind and body on the mat at One Yoga House's Montauk outpost. Choose from a room-temperature, warm or hot Vinyasa Flow class, or opt for a moment of mindfulness with a meditation session. oneyogahouse.com

At new wellness center Organic Edge in Water Mill, all the high-tech therapies offered in the city are now available under one Hamptons roof. Founder Shannon Conklin wanted to offer services like colon hydrotherapy, targeted cryotherapy and an infrared sauna pod that combines lymphatic drainage massage and pink Himalayan salt air that you can't find elsewhere out east. "I spent years managing centers in Manhattan hearing my clients beg for these therapies on the east end," says Conklin. "People were going the entire summer without the kinds of services that Organic Edge offers." yourorganicedge.com

LOUNGING AROUND

Polkadot England is a new line of soft, feminine loungewear and sleepwear co-founded by mother-daughter duo Debra Schoenau and Rachel Schoenau Doneger. The Sag Harbor-based Schoenau owns a store called Relax that houses a special section dedicated to Polkadot England, which has garnered a cult-like following on the East Coast. The joggers, boy shorts, nightgowns, robes and camisoles come in pretty prints like hearts, stripes, roses and very of-the-moment tie-dye and are all made in the English countryside. "Kids love to match their moms, so we wanted to provide customers with matching mother-daughter or mother-son sets, which are rare in the market," says Doneger. polkadot-england.com
